Case Study: Tree Sculpture

The intricate leaf design was laser-cut into the Corten to produce a natural and flowing look to the tree. As Corten creates it's own protective layer as it rusts, the intricate details of the tree will remain sharp and not weather through, as raw mild steel would.

We recommend Corten for any project with intricate details as it will not become subject to deterioration from the rust.

This sculpture was a challenging project, as it required such fine details. However, the finished result speaks for itself.

Case Study: Manchester Memorial Plaque

As a company it was a privilege to be asked to design and create a memorial plaque to mark the 4th anniversary of the Manchester attack.

Designed in conjunction with the Manchester inquiry team and Onsite Laser, the memorial plaque is now in the family area outside of the hearing room, to provide comfort for those affected.

Case Study: Honeycomb Prayer Wall and Lectern

This lectern and prayer wall set was created by our design team. This completely bespoke design was taken through the whole process, from initial ideas through to completion and delivery. These laser-cut stainless steel designs were created specially and installed into bespoke oak bases and frames, giving a high-quality finish that will last.

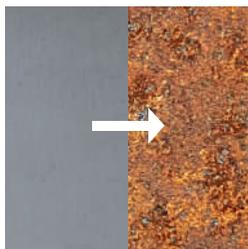

We hope the patients, families and staff will continue to use this prayer wall for years to come and that it will provide comfort to those who need it.

Material Options

These are the core materials we supply our products in, we recommend you thoroughly read our full materials and finishes guide, available on our website. If you are still unsure, our team will be happy to advise you.

Corten

This metal generates its own rust-like coating which protects the metal from corrosion. Every piece is unique, and this incredibly popular finish can be seen on a number of sculptures, including the Angel of the North.

Mild Steel (Raw)

Mild steel, when left untreated, will rust to produce a very similar effect to Corten. However, it is not as long-lasting as Corten and will eventually rust through. This is a lower-cost alternative to Corten. This is best suited for outdoor use.

Stainless Steel

This corrosion resistant metal gives a long-lasting, shiny finish. Popular in the Art Deco period, as seen on the iconic Chrysler Building, this material is perfect for outdoor use when you want to keep that fresh, metallic finish.

Mild Steel - Coloured Finish

We stock a huge variety of RAL colours. These are used to powder coat our products and are available in solid colours, as well as metallic and pearl finishes. A paint finish can be kept outdoors or indoors and is long wearing, against corrosion.

Galvanised Steel

Galvanised steel is perfect if you are after an industrial look. This finish is achieved by dipping untreated steel into a protective zinc coating, to prevent rusting. It is not safe for food but is perfect for sculptures or decor when you want an bright finish.

Corten Effect Paint Finish

If you're after a rusted look without the mess of real rust, then our Corten Effect paint finish is for you! This effect is more uniform than real Corten, however it will not run and brush off onto clothing, so is perfect for indoor use or on furniture.

Colour Options

We stock a wide variety of RAL colours, in a number of finishes. These colours are applied to mild steel by powder coating.

All our paint options are available in full gloss, semi-gloss, satin and matte finishes.
